Question 4

The support from her teacher and the communication she gives. I do not see how the title one money helps families at home with helping their child education wise. The snack packs, and little things like that I see how it helps. If title one money is to help at home then we need a better understanding on how the chromebooks work so we can help the students at home. Maybe set up a night to teach parents on what to do. If the title one money only helps students in school then I think providing more ways to help get kids to learn other ways than just on a computer. I hate that so much teaching in all on the computer and not with fun activities or better learning tools.

I appreciate the games, ideas, information on goals, etc

Out of the 3 public schools our kids have attended, Woodstation has hands down been the most communicative with parents. I have a constant line open to the teachers and principal, we get lots of literature informing us of upcoming events and they work hard to make things simple so everyone can attend.

I think the distribution of information for parents is the most valuable tool - helps us help you.

The ability to help engage families in their children's education.

Help families engage in the education of their children.

I enjoyed the family reading night where we got to make things to take home to help our child learn

More security

More field trips to learn about local business and services (e.g.- water company, waste treatment, animal shelter, library etc)

Supporting parents with strategies to help their child at home.

The phone conferences

Community involvement

There should be more family events at the school

Programs that reach parents

additional teachers and training for staff

Open House and meeting with teachers meeting with teachers and help with providing resources to help child with learning (they do very well)

Fast meetings, family nights

I think the most important thing is professional development for teachers and staff. The more continuing education that they have the more equipped they are to teach our children.

Creative resources that can be used at home to help kids grow in areas of struggle.

I appreciate any chance I can see how my child is performing against standards and against her peers. I also appreciate hearing of the extension opportunities available to her.

Professional development for teachers

I think the Title I money is being used very effectively.

FAST meetings are great and helps me to keep up communication on how well my children are doing.

My opinion, the money you support our teachers the better they can support our children.

Keep FAST meetings! Love the connection with teachers.

Fast program

I think we need more communication on sports and other activities for kids at the school. We get flyers but it really doesn't give enough information I think we need meetings about other activities at the school so if parents have questions they can get them answered. I think more activities at school keep kids structured.

I think holding monthly meetings with parents and the teacher in the classroom would be very effective

I always want more hands on learning options + outside time.

Making therapy resources available for all students not just Medicaid students

It's all important. Anything that can be done to help the teachers, parents and children all be on the same page with success in our sights.

Communication with parents.

It is evident to me that my grandson has improved his behavior because of the collaboration between the professionals that work with him and giving me tools for our home life. So thankful For the programs in which he is enrolled.

Family involvement- family nights focusing on enrichment activities like reading/math/science nights.

Not necessarily the most important but the one I feel that pertains to me the most would be the Fast meetings and family compacts.

Programs that reach parents and family members at home, in the community, and at school - such as FAST, PAC meetings, Open House, Welcome to Woodstation, sharing community information and resources, Pre-K home visits, and information on the website.

I think that all of these are very important in providing students and families with valuable resources !

Distrubting the information on engagement and the professional development are crucial with helping our child.

Programs that reach parents and family members

The teachers reaching out more so parents and teachers can both come together to support the student.

I'm so thankful for good communication between the teachers and parents and that the school welcomes parent involvement.

I am not sure but we have used books and held a book club meeting weekly to discuss what we learned and how to implement what we learned.

I think their should be paid meetings held where teachers from all over the county can meet and share the things they do for their students and have a behavioral therapist come in to help teachers be able to better communicate with students or to calm one down or to understand why a student may act the way they do.

You're doing great!

More training for teachers

The teachers are already doing so much. More built in breaks for them may help them be more effective in the classroom (not that Chloe's teacher isn't already very effective! Her teachers are the best)

Just continue to keep communication

I know last summer there were teachers that had training with Orton-Gillingham which helps teach children with dyslexia. Please continue to offer training program like this one.

Family learning nights where each classroom teaches a lesson on what their child is currently learning. Classes rotate to cover all subjects among the team teachers. I've seen it done where parents and kids attend together, ask questions and learn together. If the parents don't understand the assignment, they can't help regardless of how bad they may want to. Also seen it done where the parents attend the "class" while the kids have movie or activity elsewhere (gym/library). Then everyone comes together for a meal (paid ahead).

Building relationships with students

Continued education

WIN time is a great thing! Perhaps see if there are ways to extend that even further into other areas?

I like how different teaching techniques are used by the teachers.

I would like to see more done in the gifted program. We hardly hear anything they are doing. Ringgold Primary implements an amazing gifted program and even has afterschool events. Why are our gifted students not being pushed further than just writing stories. More STEM activities would be nice, that's been taken out of the classroom it seems.

I think holding a monthly meeting in the classroom with the teacher and parents would be a great idea. More close encounter and teachers and parents could get more comfortable with each other .parents could ask questions about the things our kids are learning so they can understand better.

Parent and teacher meetings in classrooms monthly

Helping parents understand ways to teach our students at home

I believe teachers are receiving a ton of professional development and probably would benefit most from support and additional resources in the classroom to do the jobs they have been trained to do. I think if you continually push people to perform without time to act on what they've already been taught to its fullest and with investment it can cause burnout

Professionally, we have read books (book club) and discussed how we can implement what we've learned.

I think the school does a great job. I believe parent and school communication is the most important.

Communication is definitely important, and games are always fun. Some people learn better on their own terms in their own time, so maybe a project of sorts may be best for them. Others who like working together in groups may enjoy collaborative activities.

I'm Thankful for the school and all Staff outstanding job we are Blessed to be at woodstation!

Just make sure leaders are good at communicating with adult as well as the children. Leaders should also be approachable.

Already doing a great job!

They are great already!

You all are great! I love Woodstation!

I think that adding in more Science curriculum would be a great way to engage students.

Experiments and field trips to science museums would be great.

I think everyone does an excellent job

Keep doing what you're doing

focus groups

More family activities at the school. Academically I love the school but then when you see the other elementary schools in the county having simple father, daughter dances, mother son event, more field trip it's kind of discouraging that the school is so uninvolved when it comes to other things great academics, but I still want the kids to love the school just in general.

Everyone has been great as is

I think teachers and staff have done a wonderful job and I wouldn't change a thing

To continue doing what is being done.

I didn't understand the 4th question not enough information but the most important thing for me is my son's teacher reaching out letting me know what he is struggling with and giving advice on how to help him improve. If I don't understand the work being able to reach out so I can learn it to help him be able to work on it at home to improve.

Keep implementing trauma training. So many children suffering from trauma but when the school and home work together on the same page ...big things can happen .

My child receives speech therapy once a week. It would be nice to get an update every couple weeks as to how he is improving/not improving. He also has private speech sessions and if I received more frequent updates I could make sure the private therapist was working on the same sounds as the school therapist. As it is right now, I've only had 1 personal response from the school therapist by phone call (the 2nd week of school) and I only get an update through his IEP every 10/12 weeks. I honestly don't even know the name of his speech therapist.

Our schedules lining up

at least 2 weeks notice for scheduling

This has more to do with our personal schedule and the obligations we have for multiple children with activities out of the school.

Less reading from papers. More talking one on one or fun activities for the whole family to come to that can help the families learn more about what students are doing all day at school

No suggestion

I already try to participate in everything that gets sent home. Volunteering is difficult right now because I have a 4 yr old and a toddler.

If I had more time outside of work. I love how active the school's parents, PTO, etc.

I attend all family engagement events

I attend all family engagement activities.

Evening meetings

I believe the information will be more relevant to me when Chloe is in Kindergarten

Online

If there was more available.

Having 3 kids, all with busy schedules prevents me from making it to everything for each one

Nothing

Thankfully I have attended most of the events this year. I do like the feed back forms.

Many time unfortunately, the meetings happen in the morning or right after school. I don't get off until 4:30-5 and my husbands not done until about 5 daily which makes it impossible for us to attend

8am or 3pm meetings

We always attend as long as there are no scheduling conflicts

If I wasn't so busy

Once all 3 kids are in school I'll be able to participate in family engagement events, I just don't have child care

Nothing – I come to all that I can. :)

No issues

Convenience

Childcare for children that aren't school age is the biggest reason I don't attend

Childcare for non school aged children

I think holding the meetings in your child's classroom with the teacher would be better

A form sent home for me to sign saying I will attend or a text from the teacher themselves on class dojo .

I try to participate at all that I can

A schedule that allows full time working parents to be involved

We participate in basically everything to my knowledge

Having transportation

Need to know about them

I need at least 2 weeks to plan in person meetings because of my schedule

More meetings, maybe one every nine weeks so the parent and teacher could work together.

We stay busy with sports and other activities- it's hard to do more things.

More family nights like math night and not just meetings/conferences

For any activity a mass text would be great!

Family engagements offered on opposite weekend rotation to cover kids being with other parents for weekend visitations.

Nothing. A lot of time is put into family engagement activities so I feel it is only fair I try my best to attend.

I would only say that having more time to ask off of work maybe being informed at a sooner date I have to ask off a month in advance for work so being there can be difficult when I only am told a week prior

My job hours make it inconvenient

We are tied up many of the times, 4 kids in school, and honestly sometimes we all need a break from school.

Many times we are busy.

My child is in Pre-K and some of the meetings don't apply yet but when she gets older I will go to as many as I can.

Most events depend on my days off from my job. I work as a DSP at open arms care 2nd shift 4pm to 12am out in Ootawah. If something is going on during an off day I can attend. If it's during the day I can attend but if it's after 2pm I wouldn't be able to because I leave for work at 3pm.

Just to know ahead of time. Do that we can make arrangements from work.

We run our own businesses so we have untraditional availability. I feel the school really tries to accommodate all families. Events are just usually when we have clients . But we do attend the FAST meetings .

I have no issues with this subject.

I feel teachers should incorporate more hands on teaching. Teachers should be up in the classroom giving attention to students with questions, as needed, rather than sitting at their desks, never getting up to help.

They're doing great.

Keeping parents in the loop about learning topics

If you support the teachers the children will be supported

Communicate so we are all on the same page, which she does ♥

Access to learning apps for at home

I think the classrooms needs more help. My own child has complained about children in her class hitting her teacher and misbehaving so badly the teacher has to stop lessons. Although this is common it seems more common than last year. I believe teachers need more help in the class room to help with bad behaviors so they can focus on teaching.

Doing a great job!!!

Thank you for all you do!

Love this school thanks y'all ❤️

We are very pleased with everything so far. Please continue communicating and loving our baby and helping her grow both personally and academically.

We appreciate you Mrs. Mew!!

Thank you for all the hard work this school does we are so thankful and blessed mason and Brianna Coffman love love love this school and so do !! We couldn't be more thankful for all the hard work and dedication every single staff does and works hard to keep it clean too!! ❤️

Thank you all for treating the kids as your own. Livi loves Woodstation elementary school!

Previous answer I think that adding in more Science curriculum would be a great way to engage students. More Experiments and field trips to science museums would be great.

Wonderful staff and we have had a great experience with Woodstation

Keep up the great work!

On #15 the last question did not let me choose yes but my answer is yes.

Very thankful for the support at WES for casen and his challenges.

You are doing great!!!
